

NEWSLETTER ANNOUNCEMENT for the Gulf War Illness Research Program Recruitment:

UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY FOR SERVICE!

The Gulf War Illness Research Program (GWIRP) of the Department of Defense Congressionally Directed Medical Research Programs (CDMRP) has again been awarded funds to support research for the complex set of symptoms known as Gulf War Illness (GWI). We are searching for individuals who have been diagnosed with GWI who are willing to serve on peer review panels which review the research applications submitted for funding.

Is there someone from your organization that you could nominate to serve as a consumer reviewer of GWI research applications?

Information on the CDMRP Gulf War Illness Research Program, including how to nominate an individual to serve as a consumer reviewer, is available at the CDMRP Web site:

<http://cdmrp.army.mil/GWIRP/default.htm> and <http://cdmrp.army.mil/cwg/default.shtml>. If you would like to know more, please contact Amy Klimas at amy_klimas@sra.com or phone 301-360-2150, ext. 2188. Consumer reviewers are being recruited through mid-July.
